"I got lost down C hall on my first day of high school this year. It was really an adventure since it was my first experience as a high school student," Diego Vega (9) said.

M_w education: aleksandra marinkovich

y name is Aleksandra Marinkovich. I am fifteen years old and currently a freshman at Lake Central. I was really nervous, but on the first day of school I knew where all my classes were. On blue days my classes are science, pool, math, and English. On white days I have World Geography, SRT, Spanish, and keyboarding. My classes are not bad, but I don't like some of them. On blue days my first period is science with Mrs. Harnish. After science class I go to pool. I have learned that I am a pretty good swimmer, and it's a lot of fun. I would have to say that pool is a great class. After pool I go to math with Mr. Eric Bushong. Mr. Bushong makes that class very fun. A lot of my friends are in my math class so it's more fun. He is willing to teach and talks to us like we are really his kids. And then the last period of blue day I have English. My teacher is Mr. Ryan Smith. I am not very good in English, but I try my best to what I can. My first period class on white day is World Geography with Mr. Johnson. And the of course, I go to SRT. After SRT I go to Spanish class

Mrs. Rebecca Dailey. I like Spanish, because I can speak it fluently, and I am good at it since I know how to speak another language, Serbian. After Spanish I go to Keyboarding. It's easy, because I can type fast. So far, I am enjoying my freshman year and look forward to see how it goes for three years.

- Students in Mr. Moore's SRT gather together to help each other with their homework. "I like how in SRT I study with my friends", Brittany Gachino (9) said.
- Mrs. Roberta Harnish explains to her Integrated Chemistry and Physics class about the homework that is due. Her class was busy that day learning the new lesson.

■ Students in Mr. Eric Bushong's, 3rd hour Algebra class laugh at a joke Mr. Bushong had just previously made. Many of the students even joined in and continued to make some jokes of their own

■ Aaron Sessa (12) listens to Mrs. Sally Wilkins explain the class' assignment. It consisted of various different things to help the students adapt their computer skills.

- Students in Mr. Douglas Johnson's 5th hour World Geography class watch the overhead as he shows world maps. Students were preparing for a test.
- Mr. Eric Bushong explains the lesson for the day. Since Mr. Bushong makes class fun, his student's really enjoy the class.

■ Students in Mrs. Rebecca Dailey's 7th hour Spanish class work on their assignments. The students kept busy while learning their Spanish speaking skills.

Melissa A Physical Education

"I like doing streches, but I don't like to run. Badminton was fun . I like having P.E. at the end of the day. I hated running the mile, but I passed the test in seven minutes. I hate it when we play basketball and soccer. My teacher is Mrs. Freeman; she is really nice. We're doing dodgeball, and I hate it because I always sit out. I enjoy volleyball because I actually get into the game, and I can play well. I love to serve. Volleyball is an easy sport to play. I hated doing kickboxing. The little exercises were so ridiculous," Melissa Hussey (9) said.

Cady A Physical Education

"I didn't like P.E. at first, but it's ok now because all we do is play dodgeball for the rest of the year. My favorite part is after we run. I hate the part when I run and stretch. I like it better, because my friends are in there. I like dodgeball. It's better than badminton and basketball. Basketball and badminton were boring and pointless. I also like volleyball. I actually kind of like soccer because Mrs. Freeman didn't yell at us when we tackled people. I would have rather have taken gym that semester instead of some other classes," Cody Lorentz (9) said.

he word I would use to describe about this new school is "EARLY!" Many people may not agree with me about this, but I'm not what people call a "morning" person.

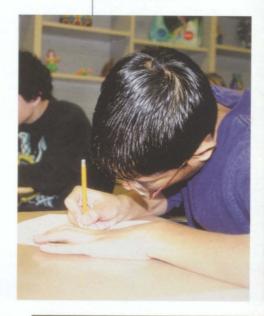

My day at Lake Central can be a very fun day, or it can be a very boring day. My blue day starts very slow with Algebra I with Mr. Moore. Math has not been my best subject, but Mr. Moore is a really good teacher. Second period is P.E. with Mr. Emerick. He gave a bad impression when I first met him in class on the first day, but he can be a very cool teacher. Third period is World Geography with Mr. Johnson. Mr. Johnson's class is pretty fun, mostly because of the videos we watch and the friends I sit next to. Fourth hour, one of the fun hours I have is Spanish with Ms. Bowen. It is a fun class because she doesn't tell us just to read out of a book she works with the class a lot.

White days are the more book work days. The first class of the day is science with Mrs. Harnish which goes by pretty fast, Mr. Harmon's SRT is one of those "Stay in your seat and no talking" classes. Next class is keyboarding with Ms. Wilkins. I like this class because there is no writing, just typing. The last class is English with Ms. Wrona, English this year is not that interesting compared to last year with Mr. Christensen. That just about sums up my average days at LC.

- German student Murtaza Udaipurwala (9) works diligently on one of her homework assignments. He ends his blue days with Ms. Bowen in Spanish I.

Amy Thomas (9) laughs during a group activity in Mr. Richard Moore's Algebra I class. Working together makes class more interesting and less stressful.

Mr. Bob Emerick's second hour P.E. students warm up before they begin jogging. Mr. Emerick lead the execises when his classes met during the year.

■ Shaun Andres (9) pays close attention to the mountain climbing video playing in Mr. Chris Johnson's class. Students claim that the videos they watch make class fun.

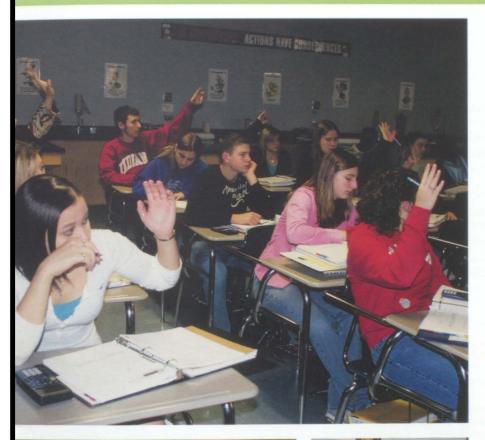

"During my white day, I enjoy Spanish with Mrs. Kathy Martinez. Learning a different language is very interesting to me," Matthew Marinello (9) said.

"In my V-Graph, I have class with Mr. [Jereme] Rainwater; we usually do a lot of work. We just finished up making our newspaper plates, which was cool," Benjamin Rose (9) said.

- Andrew Siple (9) listens attentively while Mr. Richard Moore teaches the daily lesson. Math requires students to make sure they pay close attention.
- "In SRT I usually get all of my homework done. only lets us talk for the first twenty minutes," Megan Uzubell (9) said. Mr. Chris Harmon was the band director.
- Alberto Barrera (12) types an assignment for Mrs. Sally Wilkins' keyboarding class. Students are assigned many types of office documents in keyboarding class .

Sahará experience

"I think that the most difficult class that I have on my blue days, are math and Spanish. Those are my last two periods of the day. I usually have a lot of homework. My classes go by slow, but I always have something to do or to work on. The classes can be boring, but you need to pay attention, so you don't miss any of the lesson. On my white days, I have all of my fun classes. I usually don't have any homework, and my only core class that I have is science with Mrs. (Roberta) Harnish; the rest are special classes," Sahar Qandil (9) said.

"My favorite class would have to be art with Mrs. Bushong fourth hour. We have recently just finished up painting symmetry designs. I go to Mr. (Paul) Volk's room during SRT for art. I painted a picture and it's going to be in an art contest. I also enjoy going to Mrs. (Lisa) Moreno's science class my blue days. I know many people in the class, which makes it very fun. On my white days, I have French with Mrs. (Nancy) Tilka, which I think is easy. One thing I like about being in high school is all the new people I have to met. It is just nice to see all my friends everyday," Jennifer Gazdick (9) said.

Rico A Journey

How he made it through Hurricane Katrina

"Peaches" LaMalle, the mother of Rico LaMalle, opened up about what it was like to flee from Hurricane Katrina. She shared the tribulations she and her family faced when escaping Hurricane Katrina.

She was told about the barricade on New Orleans by a real estate agent while shopping for a new home forty miles from the city.

"They said the city had been locked out; I wouldn't be able to return," Mrs. LaMalle said.

She met her husband at a hotel, and during the night it was evacuated. Within forty minutes of traveling, her husband got into an accident because a deer ran into the road, then rolled into a ditch, and became incoherent.

Mr. LaMalle went missing for four days, and was found by a couple who were getting away from the storm. LaMalle said, "Rico understood what was going on, he wasn't stressed by the situation."

The LaMalle family stayed in the home of George Fraizer ('05). That's where she heard about the West Lake program. After meeting with the teachers, she enrolled Rico.

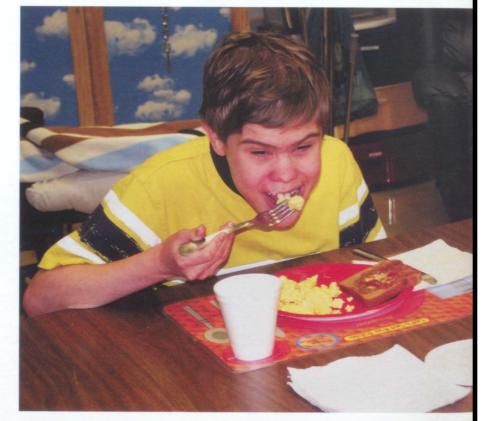

The family now lives in a church parsonage home in Munster, where they do not have to worry about paying rent.

"When I look back, I see that the condition of the city was unprecedented. When I look at where I am now, I see blessings. Everyone has been so kind; they have reached out their arms to help with love and concern. There are blessings all around."

■ Megan Bolinger prepares eggs for her classmates. Bolinger, Rico DeMalle and Russell Hill helped to make the breakfast that morning along with Bollinger...

Harry Rice watches as his classmates have a free throw contest. Earlier Rice threw a few backward free throws. He came close several times.

■ Jacob Geary (12) and Lee Rose play Uno during fifth hour. Geary was not only Rose's dealer for the day, he was also his peer mentor for the semester.

The most interesting classroom I had was

's classroom because

"I've learned a lot about myself by being a peer mentor. I appreciate what I have. I don't take anything for granted now," Mark Humpfer (12) said.

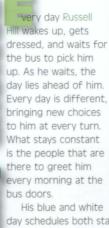

"It's (peer mentoring) a really good experience because I want to be a special education teacher after my college career," Sarah Mullins (10) said.

■ Harry Rice dribbles twice, aims, and then shoots to score. Rice continued to practice and scored his next few tries.

- Austin Nieminski eats his eggs and toast during class. Every morning he along with his classmates prepare breakfast for each other and their teachers.
- Mark Humpfer (12) helps Daniel Purevich zip up his jacket. Benjamin was preparing to go to Barnes & Nobles and then a turkey dinner feast with his classmates day schedules both start with going over what day it is and what the weather is like outside. He also decides what on the school menu appeals to him most for lunch. To communicate, he uses a special computer that has different selection buttons on its main screen. When these buttons are then selected the computer vocalizes whatever it is that he has chosen.

Next, he works on his cooking skills. Every morning he and his peers cook breakfast, taking turns selecting what they will be eating. His favorite things to eat are either toast or cereal. Once breakfast is over, Russell then gets time to work on his math and computer skills.

Russell works to help benefit the school as well; he spends time working at the vending machines on blue days, but during his white days, Russell also learns about the community at places like Meijer or the mall.

Every day Russell Hill wakes up, gets dressed, and waits for the bus to pick him up. As he waits the day lies ahead of him. In that day he is able to make several different choices. It's up to him how the day will have ended, and what experiences he's created.

- Austin Neminski locks his eyes on the basketball hoop, positions his body, and prepares to shoot. Although he missed the shot, he continued to practice.
- Megan Macur plays bingo with her classmates. "I like to match up the pictures. I normally win a lot," Macur said.

"I like sitting at the lunch table with all my friends. Lunch is a nice break from all the work at school," Steven Grabarek (10) eople may sum up their high school experience with a sport or club that they're strongly involved in. For me, it's the classes I choose and the people in them that make my high school experience unique from anyone else's. Another thing that makes my high school experience what it is, is being with my two best friends Paige Brummett (10) and Lianna Giovane (10).

I stay after to finish up ceramic projects. It's my elective classes like Ceramics and Housing and Interior that make my day. My interest in ceramics began sophomore year. I finished the year with Ceramics II and am currently in Ceramics III, only to finish off my junior year with Ceramics IV. After sophomore year, I knew ceramics was definitely for me. I found something I was good at. The funny thing about that class is I've been around the same people since my first ceramics class. Part of what makes that class enjoyable for me, besides working with clay, is hanging out with James Brock (12), Catherine Feeney (12), Ryan McFarland (12), and Marcy Minyard (12). Something that I had been interested in enough to consider a possible career was Housing and Interiors. That class was everything I had hoped for including getting to look at fabric swatches and color wheels. I have fun working with Nadia Castagna (11), Christina Coniglio (11), Jennifer Pelc (11), and Breanne Smith (12). Both have a relaxing environment.

- Rvan McFarland (12) and Catherine Feeney (12), work on projects during class. "I have a lot of fun with all the girls at my table," McFarland said.
- Mr. Rod Wartman highlights important sections in the text while his class takes a test. Ryan Reed (11) turns in his test after looking over his answers.

Ms. Rita Shevik, Science, takes attendance while her class begins a lab. "They did a good job (in the lab) and seemed to enjoy themselves. They were excited to see the reactions of the chemicals," Ms. Shevik said.

James Brock (12) works on his ceramic project in Mrs. Nancy Gray's third hour class. Brock is currently taking Ceramics III.

Lianna Giovane (10) and Paige Brummett (11) are Brandi Garibay's best friends.

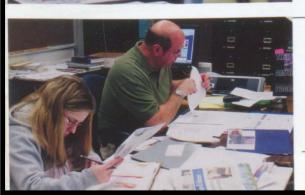

Lianna and Brandi met in the second grade when they lived down the street from each other, and Paige and Brandi met their freshman year in gym class. "Brandi is really down to earth and fun to be around," Lianna said, "We love to spend time together and play frisbee." "She always puts others before herself," said Paige, "we've had so many funny moments together, it's hard to pick out just one." It is also evident to her friends that Brandi has an artistic talent. "She is very artistic and it represents who she is," Paige said.

Jennifer Pelc (11) and Garibay have known each other since freshman year. "She has a fun style and always wears the coolest stuff," Pelc said. Catherine Feeney (12) has known Garibay since sophomore year. "Two years ago I met Brandi in Ceramics I and II and on the tennis team," Catherine Feeney said. "We always have fun watching Ryan McFarland (12) dance in class because he's so crazy. We all just point and laugh. Table two rocks my world and I give Brandi two thumbs up!"

_ SRT. My _

day was harder

y day is definitely unique compared to many other students. Besides my normal classes, I enjoy taking Sewing III & IV. I have been sewing since I was 9, and I have participated in it at school since 6th grade. I got into it because my friend inspired me with all the things you can make. I have made blankets, quilts, pillows, costumes, and clothes. The people who influence me in my classes are all of my friends that make me laugh and get me through each and every day. I chose the classes that I am in is because I love to try and make what extra classes I have exciting. That is why I chose lifeguarding and Sewing III & IV this year.

The low point of my days would have to be the first and last classes of the day because of how slow they go by, but the high point would be the classes I have the most fun in. My high school experience, besides preparing for college, is definitely to make every day as interesting and fun for the four years by participating in extra classes, sports, activities, and most of all being with my friends. My white day is way more enjoyable having French, lifeguarding, and SRT with all my swimmer girls in either Sewing or my coach's room. It is less stressful than my blue day which holds the harder core classes. The biggest part of my high school experience is all the awesome friends I have made and the many experiences I have every day.

Gasan A experience

"My experience diving in high school has been one of the most fun things I've enjoyed out of all my years in school. I started my juhior year after watching diving in the Olympics, and decided that I wanted to give it a go. My sister Megan Specyal was helpful in giving me pointers because she was a great gymnast. It was pretty ugly my first few months and it was painful and embarassing smacking all the time. Towards the end of the year, I developed into a decent diver and ended my season on a good note. It is nice being able to spend some time with my sister because next year I'll be going to college," Jason Specyal (12) said.

Mrs. Bruns is the best sewing teacher ever! She helps you with whatever you don't know how to do, which for me was basically everything. I am not very bright when it comes to a needle and thread. Even though I had sewing in 7th grade, the whole concept is still kind of new to me. Sewing class then was just making pillows and lame stuff, but now it's a little more complex. You put hard work into a project this year, which makes it really special. You can make it really special, and make anything your little heart desires. From threading the machines to dethreading my mistakes, it's an awesome class to take," Stephanie Smith (11) said.

After that comes, I am looking forward to Spring Break and summer. My most memorable moment this year is when I got an 82% on my U.S. History test! I was so excited because I was planning on studying Accounting in college, but now that I'm actually in that class, it seems kind of hard. It doesn't seem so interesting. We're learning about all the basic Accounting skills. My favorite part of the day on blue days is leaving school and getting out before the buses. On white days, my favorite class is SRT with Mr. Clark! It makes the day go by so much faster! All my classes this year are close to each other. It helps me to not be late to my classes. My friends in my classes make my day so much better. After school, I work at Sanfrantello's Pizza. I usually work four days a week. I work with Kaitlin Kolember (11), Jennifer Levin (11), and Stephanie Campos (11). Working with friends makes work faster and more fun!

Erik Hon (12) has a break to work on homework during English. "In eighth hour English, Jessica and I are always partners during couple assignments," Hon said.

regular time and I start at 10:21 a.m. every day. My day is somewhat unique from other students', and I have too many people to name that influence my experiences.

The reason why I start school late every day is because I am in P.M. Auto. Working on cars and wanting to get into the automotive field is a passion I have. I chose to take Intro Auto my sophomore year because I wanted to learn. Then the day came where Mr. Brannock was interviewing us for a spot in Vocational Auto. I tried as hard as I could to grasp the opportunity.

Being in this class is the biggest highlight of my day. I love working on cars; it's a great thing that makes me want to come to school every day.

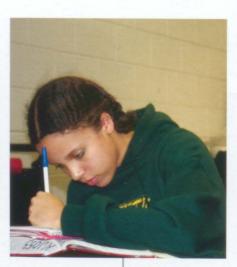

Blue or white days don't make a difference to me because it's almost the same routine every day: wake up, come to school, go to auto, and go home. I do favor white days because they're easier. I come to school and the first thing I do is go to lunch. What more could I ask for?

- Brannocks' P.M. Auto class. Carrington was trying to find a way to take off the stripped bolt of his fellow classmate's
- Bruce Forsythe (11) uses a jack in P.M. Auto to lift the rear axle. Forsythe broke his rear axle jumping a railroad crossing.

- - Mark Lambert (11) and Peter Davis (11) put their desks together to finish up their worksheets. The two work on studying for a test they have the next class period.

■ Amanda Reyome (11) works on some homework for Mr. Chris Engel's 5th hour English class. Reyome worked to finish her work before the day ended.

■ Mr. Rod Wartman, Social Studies, teaches his 7th hour U.S. History class. "You just can't get enough of U.S. History notes," Mr. Wartman said.

"If it wasn't for Chris Carrington and everyone helping me, the Buick engine change wouldn't have been finished," Christopher Palango (12) said.

"Everyone respects each other in Auto. We all crack a lot of jokes; everyone is treated equally here. It's a lot of fun," Kimberly Jarvis (11) said.

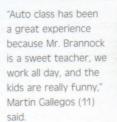

"Auto is one big family; everyone respects each other. I love Auto," Ashley Kobak (11) said. Ashley is in A.M. Auto; she visits P.M. often.

"My English class is bomb; Mr. Engel always has a witty zinger to slam on students, not to mention the random dancing," Kevin Forajter (11) said.

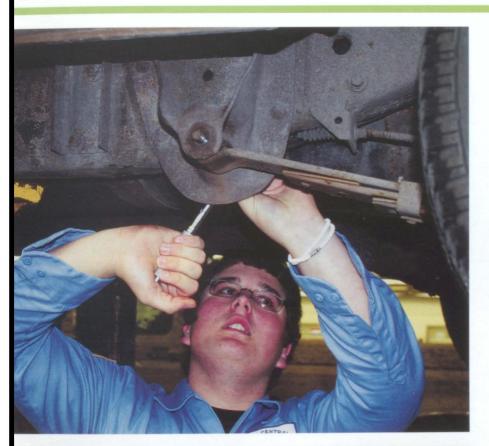

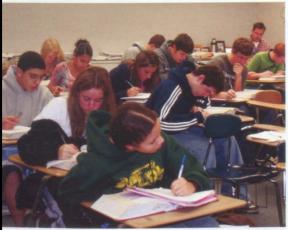

"English class is awesome because Mr. Engel finds a way to make learning fun," Mark Lambert (11) said.

Mr. Chris Engel's 5th hour English class works independently and quietly. They are trying to finish their Nations Born worksheets for an upcoming test.

My days start out at 6 a.m. when I wake up. I get on the bus around 6:30 a.m. This is where my day begins. Once I get to LC, I catch another bus to the Hammond Career Center. The career center begins at 7:45 a.m. We work until our break period at 9:15 a.m. After the break, there's only an hour left until we leave the Career Center and take the bus back to LC. We get to LC around 10:50 a.m. and a few minutes later, my normal LC days begin.

■ The American flag waves high above the Hammond Career Center. Many students from the school spend the first half of their days at this vocational school.

"I wanted to further my career in business for when I go to college. My teacher has kept me on track," David Copeland (12) said.

"(The Career Center) offered the construction class, and I've wanted to build houses all my life," Andrew Govert (11) said.

Mrs. Kathy Kapelinski works in the Athletic Department. Brackins aides for Mrs. Kapelinski for his fourth hour class.

- A student involved in the culinary school at the Hammond Career Center chops food. She worked to finish the food preparation for the meal she will be cooking.
- Matthew Brackins (11) and company work to prepare the day's tasks in the Hammond Career Center's bakery. The bakery is a part of the culinary school.

■ Britini Weiner (11) looks down at her Geometry homework. *Mrs. Ohlemcamp is a hands-on teacher; she does the work along with you," Brittany Wisner (11) said.

Ma Procks experience

"Our kids are more focused on what they're doing in terms of learning a skill or craft. We have group in the morning and an entirely different group in the afternoon. It's a matter of focus, really. They want to be here. The Career Center is much different from a regular school. In other words, it's a lot more than figuring out a math problem. I really enjoy working here with the kids. They get more experiences in doing what they plan on doing," Mr. Prorok, Assistant Principal, said.

Mr. Trividada experience

"Being a trade school, they get the opportunity to learn a trade so that they can earn a living. It also gives them the skills to do maintenance around the house, such as fixing a broken table, or building a shed for the backyard, which can save them a lot of money. In construction, it's mainly hands-on, and if you show enough determination, you can be involved in the carpenter apprentice program. It's more hands-on than most high schools. The program has also become community based," Mr. Trinidad, Construction Teacher, said.

My schedule features many high points. In Visual Basic Database Management with Mrs. Chavez I learn how to create computer programs in Visual Basic that use databases and become prepared for the Business Professionals of America competition in Visual Basics. English with Mr. Fredrick is loads of fun and loads of work. Mr. Harnish's organization and unique sayings make Chemistry educational and enjoyable. AP Physics with Mr. Skorupa is always interesting. Despite LC's overcrowding, there were ten students in AP Physics in August and only eight students in November.

"I hate how when teachers are having a bad day they take their anger out on us," Aliki Doukas (11) said.

"I hate blue days because my hard classes are on that day. I don't like having honors English first hour," Emily Bohn (10) said.

- Mixing chemicals, Zachary King (12) concentrates hard not to spill anything. King is not only in honors and AP classes, he is also the editor in chief of Scout, the school newspaper.
- Giving extra study help, Steven Stark (12) explains a worksheet to Ricky Jacobs (12). Stark often helps Jacobs in SRT because they sit next to each other.

Looking over a test, Farheen Sultana (12) uses her book to find the correct answers. This AP Physics class started with ten students and now only has eight.

inally graduating from LC! WOO HOO! This last semester had to have been the easiest and most fun in all the four years I have been here at LC. No math, no science, especially since I'm lucky to get C's in those classes, and because of the wonders of summer school, I got my Economics and Government credits in six weeks. I only needed two credits total in order to receive my diploma, and both of those classes were on my blue day - World Lit and Intensive Writing. Those were the classes that involved any real work or putting in some serious study time. I love those classes, especially since I plan on majoring in English. White day was the easiest day all week and great for Mondays. Nothing important happened in those classes. In all of those classes I had a friend or two making it a whole lot easier to stay awake. Thankfully, January 16 was my last day as a Lake Central High School student, and January 17 is my first day as a Purdue Cal student. Of course, one of the best parts of graduating and starting college is that I have school only two days a week! Sleeping in on a Tuesday is going while my little brother catches the bus at 6:30 in the morning. But the main reason for graduating early is to go to college, major in English teaching, and COME BACK to high school-at least next time I'll be getting paid.

Different Parts of the Day

Students tell about their different homecoming experiences

"Planning for Homecoming was stressful. As everything came together, I was more relaxed and I was able to enjoy myself. The dance-off was just spur of the moment. We thought everyone would join, but everyone else stopped, and there were only four of us left. We didn't care; it was fun," Jamie Duncan (12) said.

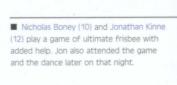

"It's a tradition for the juniors and seniors on cross country to run with torches and light the Indian letters before the Homecoming game. The girls were nervous, but I wasn't. I guess they were afraid of fire. We had to start running fast because the torches started burning our hands," Anna Horecky (11) said.

"During the dance, my friend told me I should go crowd surfing. When I said no, he picked me up. Before I knew it, I was surfing across the floor. I fell on my back, and then the music stopped and the lights went on. My back hurt for a couple days, but it was quite an experience," John Wells (11) said.

Mr. Raymond Palasz, English, participates in the dunk tank festivities on Homecoming day. "I recommend they get a hot tub next year." Mr. Palasz said.

Students voted for people in their grade to determine the court.

- 2. Alexander Kubat (12) and Amber Hughes (12) were announced king and queen.
- 3. Emily Bohn (10) and Allan Harris (10) were prince and princess for the sophomore class.

Homecoming vs. Band Homecoming

"Homecoming was cool because my friends and I were on the LCTV announcements probably because we were having so much fun dancing," Johanna Schilling (12) said. The day begins with the pep rally after school, the game follows, and then the dance finishes the night off. Having the dance follow the game called for casual dress. "I would not want Homecoming to be semi-formal again because it's too hard to get dressed up after the game, and it'd be more expensive," Amy McRam (9) said.

My escape: weekend hangouts

pread by: Samantha Gresham and Amy Spoljaric

Escaping the school daze...

You're replaying the weekend in your head, remembering all the stupid jokes, laughing at the crazy memories when... BAM! The teacher calls on you, and you snap back to reality. It's only Monday, and the cold desk and boring lecture couldn't seem less appealing. With all the homework, tests, and stress. you just glaze over into a daze. But, just remember, your escape begins Friday at 2:09. The weekend begins!

■ Alexandra Chakonas (11) hangs out at Starbucks while waiting for her usual caramel frappacino. She goes there often to chat with her friends.

■ Michelle Elzinga (11) and Rebecca Warrens (10) break it down at DC's Country Junction. Dancing and goofing around is their way to escape from school life.

■ Nicole Halaicsik (11) stands outside Cardinal Fitness before her weekly workout. "On the weekends, I love to escape at the gym. I usually go with a friend," Halaicsik said.

■ Teren Marshall (12) begins to bake a cake as she relaxes after school. She enjoys cooking and escapes from the stress of school at home in her kitchen.

el Amigo

"I go to el Amigo on the weekends because it is always open really late. The food there is amazing, and Freddy (the owner) is the man. " Nikola Koricanac (12) said.

McDonald's

'McDonald's is a fun hangout when you're bored. The food's so cheap, and it's open late. After the football and basketball games, people all meet there to make plans, eat. and talk," Aimee Demy (12) said.

"My weekend escape is just being around my friends. We like to hang around and go to the mall," Amber Bryant (10) said.

"My weekend escape is playing football with my friends. They all come to my house, and we just hang out," Jamar Murray (9) said.

Barely Escaping

Two jobs

"I really do not have an escape from school. After school on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday, I work at a dentist's office as an assistant. On Wednsday and Sunday, I work at Hollister in the mall.

When I get home from one of my two jobs, I usually have a lot of homework and tests to study for, so I'm always stressed about something. The weekends consist of catching up on sleep and homework. I never really have a real escape from some sort of work," Marisa Ajder (12) said.

ave you ever felt like you needed to express yourself but you did not know how to go about it? Have you ever felt like no one understands what you're trying to say? Many students have these same feelings, and many find different ways to do it. Some students decide to spend time creating music and eventually start a band. These bands find ways of expressing their true emotion through the ever-changing art of song. Self-expression is an important and valuable aspect of everyday life.

Auden pours their hearts into their music and blow their fans away at a local show.

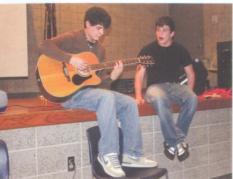

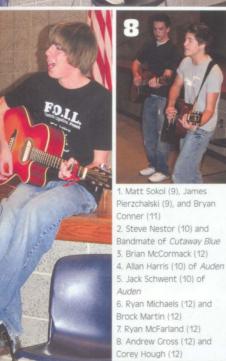

"[Being in a band] was a great experience. That's how I got close with all the friends I hang out with now," Kevin Borozan (11), of the former Lost Count Trying, said.

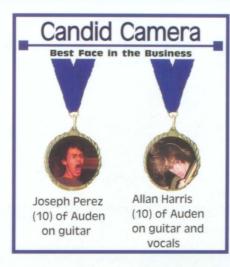

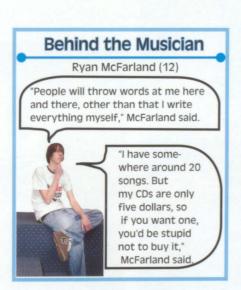

"I'm kind of disappointed that [my band] is over. There were just a lot of differences between the members," Jon Raila (12), of the former Dirge, said.

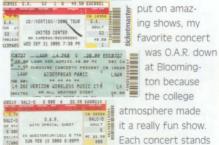

Matasha s concert craze

"Although I'm not proud to say, my first concert was Christina Aguilera in the sixth grade. Since then, however, my tastes have definitely changed. In the eighth grade, I went to see Green Day and Blink-182. Again, not another of my finest moments, but it was an improvement and a good show nonetheless. It was my first rock experience, and it was really fun. Fast-forward a few years. Just during my senior year, I've gone to four major concerts. Those being Widespread Panic, U2, Depeche Mode, and O.A.R., not including a bunch of local bands that I've seen. My craze didn't really start until last summer when I saw Widespread Panic. It was probably one of the more culturally shocking experiences I've had. So many people were there just absorbing the music and having a good time. Although U2 and Depeche Mode

Girls remember their unique formal experiences

"My boyfriend, Tony Kowal, graduated in 2002. He flew back from Arizona to go to formal with me. He moved there a little less than a year ago. We've been dating for about a year and a half. This was our first dance together. I went to pick him up at the airport, and I was so excited to see him. We had a great time, and we went to Giovanni's afterwards. He was very romantic," Jennifer Jackman (12) said.

"My formal was experience was a night I will never forget. My date thought the dance was two weeks away when it was only one, so he didn't get his tux until two days before the dance. I was freaking out. Then, on the way to the dance, we got stuck by a train that had totally stopped. So we got out of the car, turned up the music, and started dancing in the street," Stephanie Ferrini (12) said.

"I went to formal with my friend Sharon Progar (11), and we went with our friend Juile Paulauski (11) who went with her date Danny from Gavit. Julie had been telling me she wanted to set me up with someone, but hadn't told me who. At the dance, Julie said she broke her foot, and Sharon went to get her ice. That left me alone to dance with Danny. Turns out, Julie was faking. She just wanted to set me up with Danny," Meghan Andrews (11) said.

The only thing that got me PO'd (which stands for 'personally offected') was that they didn't play the dance's theme song 'Unchained Melody' by the Righteous Brothers while the formal court was dancing. That song is totally rockin,' and they didn't play it! Besides that, the dance was a lot of fun...good times. I took my crown to Alexander's for an evening of fine dining. t's the debate of senior year: Senior Banquet vs. Prom. Which is more fun and which one will create the most memories?

"Prom was the best memory of my high school career. The dance was okay, but dance was okay, but the weekend was amazing," Steven Troester (12) said.

Both Senior Banquet and Prom are dances, but they both have different high points and low points.

"Senior Banquet was better because you got to wear costumes and there wasn't a fuss about dates," Andrew Giegos (12) said. Some people on the other hand, liked prom more.

"I liked prom because I got to go with my boyfriend, Joseph Rogan (12), and get all dressed up," Stephanie Villareal (12) said.

As a junior, anticipation builds and the debate between Senior Prom and Senior Banquet begins.

"I can't wait until Senior Banquet because there's a theme > and you don't have to worry about a date. I want our theme to be "Beach Party," Roscee Methyin (11) said.

On the other hand, some anticipate their senior prom more

"I'm so excited for my senior prom because it will be my last year of high school and the last dance I'll get to go to," Yesenia Corral (11) said.

Even though the debate between Senior Banquet and Senior Prom may never end, neither will the memories that are created. Adam Short (12) picks up girlfriend Alexa Uzabell (12) after being crowned Prom King and Queen. The two have been going out for three and a half years.

- Brandon Baumgarten (11) and Bridget McDonnell (11) tear it up on the dance floor while everyone watches admiringly. Many different students got their chance to dance in the swing dancing contest.
- Brianna Belligio (11) and Kaitlyn Vukelich (11) cast their votes for prom court before entering the dance. Belligio was one of the junior nominees for princess.

- Students got down on the "flo" while dancing to the "Casper Slide." The object of the dance was to listen to directions from the song and to go as low as you can go.
- Steven McGovern (12) and Ashley Hebdi (12) dance the night away in Paris during the swing dancing contest. The two have been friends since eighth grade.

"Prom was awesome! I got my dress specialy made; I can't wait till next year," Jillian Callahan (11) said.

"The thing I will remember most about prom is that I was on prom court and I actually danced," Amanda Jezior (12) said.

■ Aaron Witherow (12) and Alisha Smith (Highland '07) scan through the DJ's song list to find the perfect song to dance to. They looked through the list of hundreds of songs until they found the perfect one.

"The group left around 11 o'clock to go to Hidden Paradise Campground which was three hours away. There was about seventy-five people who went down with us. There was a huge pavillion where we all put our coolers, grilled, and ate. People were playing frisbee out in the field while others were debarking and cutting down trees to put in the fire. It started to pour at one point, but it didn't stop us. We all went under the pavillion and had a dance party. We rocked out all night on the picnic tables to the bongos and guitar. It was definitely the best way to end senior prom," Jenna Spoljaric (12) said.

I had to pee, so we pulled over and stopped at a gas station. As we pulled over, Nebo got in a car accident, and everything was blamed on me! Nebo was fine, and there was no damage. We all took an awesome western picure with everybody dressed up in old clothing. We stayed until 9:15 p.m. because we had to ride the Raging Bull two more times. We took two limos back and Nebo drove without getting into any accidents," Amber Studer (11) said.

taining, especially

t's five minutes before you go on. Everyone quiets down. The lights dim, and the curtain opens. The talent show begins.

"I was a little bit nervous," John Bowden (9) of 4-Year Stand said about his performance.

The acts included dancing, singing, and instrumental talent. The show was judged by four teachers and six students; the judging was based on stage performance, presentation of act, and overall talent.

"A lot of the acts that night were pretty entertaining, especially the singing," Deborah Nemeth (11) said.

There was a tie for the grand prize between singer Ryan McFarland (12), and the dance performance by Russell Almazan (12), Ronak Parikh (12), and Ryan Michaels (12).

"It feels great to share the grand prize with such a good act. and have everyone enjoy my art," McFarland said.

Patrick Shanely (10) performed his bagpipe routine to show off his Irish heritage. Shanely also played his bagpipes at the singing," Deborah the St. Baldricks drive in the fieldhouse.

> "Pat gave a new flavor to bagpipes and made it more cool to listen to than the original bagpipe players." performer Jason Specyal (12) said about his fellow musician.

Although this was one of the longest talent shows in some time, the audience members still got blown away by the very entertaining performances.

The Great Cap Toss

Graduates recall how they felt on the big night

"Graduation was so great because my best friend was the Salutatorian and gave a speech. I cried so hard when I realized high school was over. Although I can't wait for college next year, it's sad to think that this stage in my life is over," Natalie Raketich said.

"Graduation is something your parents tell you about - the emotions, the nerves, and not seeing your friends, but while you're sitting there waiting for your diploma, the reality of it really hits you. You're starting a new chapter of your life, but the old one is permanently printed in your mind," Amanda Jezior said.

"I remember Mr. Veracco was talking and we were all more concerned with throwing our caps up in the air and when he said 'Congratulations Class of 2006' I felt more like I was in a movie then at my own graduation - but we finally did it," Ashley Hebda said.

"It was pretty sweet. It felt good to finally get it out of the way. I felt like a stud walking across the stage saying 'Hi' to all my friends. I waited for four years to do that, and it feels good," Benjamin Kistner said.

- Students throw their caps in the air with excitment at the end of the ceremony. Then came the difficult task of finding their own cap again.
- Mirissa Krukowski, Michelle Henry, Joshua Novak and Melissa Shofroth clap as fellow students walk accross the stage. The ceremony took an hour and forty-five minutes hours due to the 571 seniors.

Seniors reported to the school at 7:30 a.m. to take their class picture.

Students were taken outside and separated into girls and boys. The lines were formed in height order.

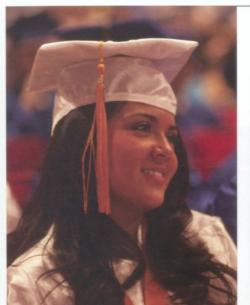

"Craduation was one of the hardest events to take pictures of. I always seemed to be in the way of somebody and teachers kept telling me to sit down," John Wells (11) said.

"Craduation was probably the most surreal experience. After walking off the stage I couldn't believe it had just happened," Natasha Jovanovic (12) said.

- Kathryn Lilly smiles as she listens to speeches. She wears a gold tassel for NHS, a medallion for her Honors Diploma, and a gold cord for Summa Cum Laude.
- The Summa Cum Laude students file into rank order as they are entering the Star Plaza Theater. These students wore a gold cord around their necks to signify their academic achievements.

■ The Counterpoints performed at the graduation ceremony. They sang the Friends theme song, "I'll Be There For you" and "Blessing."

"Up until now, people have told us that graduating high school is the most important goal in our lives. Tonight we are accomplishing that goal. We now each have to make our own goals for our own lives. We can and will take our lives in different directions. Tonight is just the beginning of all of our futures. I once heard that when it comes to the future, there are three kinds of people: those who make it happen, those who let it happen, and those who wonder what happened," Bradley Trembacki said during his Valedictorian speech.

makes me feel kind of sad. While I'm looking forward to starting this new phase in my life, I can't help but think about all the good times we've had and the friendships we've made. Some of our friendships go back as far as pre-school, Girl Scouts, or Little League, while others have begun as recently as senior year. In a school this large, we weren't able to become friends with everyone in our class, but we have learned to respect and admire the unique personalities and accomplishments of our classmates," Stephanie Szewciw said during her Salutatorian speech.

"I'm in Interact which involves a lot of volunteering. I enjoy volunteering because I know that the little bit of work I do goes a long way to help others," Abby Wilkins (11) said.

"I'm in Interact and it's a lot of fun. It's nice to be in a club where you can help other people rather than just doing something for yourself," Allison Hill (11) said.

"The blood drive worked out well. There's a lot of blood needed because of diseases and accidents. It's good to know that our school is volunteering," Paul Ramsy (12) said.

"I volunteer for a group called Power Paws. I take my dog to Nursing Homes and visit handy cap children. It really makes the people feel better," Nicole Vacindak (11) said.

Clubs sponsor charity events to help the less

What comes to mind when you think of giving money to charity? Putting spare change into a can isn't the only way to raise money for charities. "We had Club Cancun for Alex. The talent show proceeds go to Riley Children's Hospital.," said Dana Fanelli (11), an active member of student council. Other clubs, such as National fortunate Honor Society, also sponsored many charity events. "This year we raised money of Dimes, Relay for Life, American Heart Assosciation, the blood drives, Hospice Cookie Walk, and Elves in the Park," said Mrs. Nancy Crooks, math teacher and Head Sponsor of NHS.

Clubs annually contribute to many charities and this year was no exception. Many charity fundraisers were successful. "The Talent Show was a big success. It was sold out," said Fanelli

N-teens is a really good club to be in, I like it a lot," Ashley Gray (12) said.

"The Interact Club is involved in an array of activities aimed at serving the community. We always do a Thanksgiving Dinner to provide for the less fortunate of the Hammond and Griffith areas. This past year, Interact, following the closing of a Knights of Columbus in Hammond, arrived at the building to find a Church. When three members came in and explained how the club served Thanksgiving dinner in the past, Reverand Evans, the head of the Church, saw the idea as a gift from God. On Thanksgiving Day, Interact actually ran what will become an annual Thanksgiving Dinner at the Universal Christian Center. The Club also sponsors and participates in The March of Dimes and the Relay for Life. We are always open for service projects and are ready to help the community." Zachary Stockdale (12) said.

"I enjoy being involved in Interact because our charities help out a diverse group of people. On Thanksgiving we help out the homeless and during March of Dimes, we help out premature babies. That shows the wide range of volunteering we do," Maja Raskovic (12) said.

The Man Behind the Mask:

the real Interact man

Name: Tom Clark

Occupation: U.S. History Teacher

Alias: Interact Man Sponsor: Interact Club

Past Accomplisments: Providing assistance in New Orleans after the effects of Hurricane Katrina, serving our country in the Middle East, and raising thousands of dollars for the Interact Food Drive Known for: interactive classes & drawing students into history

Nemesis: Hunger

"He helped get Interact motivated while he's gone. Also to finish what he started in the beginning of the year," Maja Raskovic (12) said.

"Mr. Clark is a major influence. When he left, the entire school felt the impact of losing him. It's amazing how one man can make such a difference," David Banas (12) said.

"Mr. Clark was the first person that helped me get involved in the school. He was the reason I joined so many other clubs. He's so enthusiastic and all he wants to do it help. He has such a great personality," Irais Ferreira (12) said.

"I always thought St. Baldrick's was a really great cause, but this year it meant a little more to me. One of my friend's brothers, Alex Rodriguez, has been battling cancer. I decided to participate and donate my hair for him. A bunch of people turned out that I knew, but there could have been a lot more. I really think people should just think of how much they can do by donating so little. It was really cool seeing Pat Shanley play the bagpipes in the gym while everyone was getting their hair cut. Everyone was in such a good mood and were just happy to be there," Joseph Cedano (11) said.

It was the final day of the food drive. The tension in the air was high. The Auto-shop SRT trailed Mrs. Helmer's SRT by only a few cans. It was down to the final hour when a huge truck pulled into the high school's parking lot and changed the result of the annual Interact Food Drive. Cans as well as clothing items poured out one after another until the truck was entirely empty sealing the victory for the Auto-Shop SRT.

Student participation never fails to make every drive successful, raising money for countless charities. Interact beat last years goal by roughly 2,000 cans in this 2006 Food Drive. Later on in the gym, equal success was seen in the St. Baldricks fundrasier, where fearless students and staff donated locks of hair to pediatric cancer research. "I did it because I thought it was a good cause but especially because I realy wanted a chance to help Alex Rodriguez and his family. It was a good opportunity to help someone in our school in need," Jake Jensen (12) said.

Having participated in this fundrasier for only two years, National Honor Society was able to raise over $9,000. The accomplishments of clubs continued as the year progressed. The annual Blood Drive drew a crowd of selfless students willing to donate both time and blood for those in need. These drives could not have been successful without the dedication of students and staff. "I've always enjoyed doing community service, and that's what NHS is all about,"

Kathryn Lilly (12) said. And in the end, it is the action that we take today that provides for a better tomorrow.

"I didn't get a chance to help out with a lot of the food drive, but I did what I could. I always bought candy from Mr. Clark, and Charity events, dances, planning ...one girl proves she can do it all Being in a club can be a huge responibility. Imagine being in six of them. For Christine Roberts (11), it's her life. She is involved in Student Council, Interact, Spanish honors club, N-Teens, Academic Letterwinners, and NHS.

"I enjoy doing charity work, and it also looks great on college applications to have been involved in several clubs," Roberts said.

Being involved is important to her for many different reasons. "Being involved gives you something to be a part of, somewhere to belong. It's also important to learn teamwork and how to work with others," Roberts said.

Planning events and functions can be stressful, but in the end it's worth it.

"Seeing what we planned finally happen is great. I love working on a big project, like the food drive for Interact or Homecoming for student council. It's very rewarding being a part of everything," Roberts said.

■ Larissa Strickland (11) reaches high to hang streamers along the foyer ceilings. "It was for a Halloween decorating contest, and I was terrified to get on the ladder," Strickland said.

"Clubs are good because they get the students more involved with the school," Frank Renzo (11) said.

"This year's homecoming was so much fun! We all got ready at my house and then went to the game. I liked how we all dressed in white and blue to show our spirit. I also liked how the dance was right after the game. Before the game started, we all tailgated, ate food, danced and played beanbags. Then, after the dance we all went back to Brandy Rossiano's house. I really enjoyed this years homecoming,"Breanne Marcinak (11) said.

"Sometimes my friends and I play in the pep band, so we have to make school spirit our top priority. Most of the time, I'm not really pumped about it, but once the game starts, it's hard for me to take my eyes off of it and this is the point where I really start to liven up. I suppose it really brings out the spirit in me. It's funny because when the game is over, and we've played all the music that we can, I'm left feeling unsatisfied. "Homecoming because it had a lot of decorations and everyone went along with the theme," Matt Mitziga (11) said.

"Formal because the decorations were groovy. Me and my date matched each other and the theme," Ryan Goad (11) said.

I helped prepare for the _____ dance as part of _____. We started at ____ and ____ and _____.

"I've been to all of the dances so far except for the Cancun dance. The dances are better from last year because I am an upperclassman," Benjamin Skiba (11) said.

"I had fun at homecoming, but formal was more fun because I got to get all dressed up," Megan Chambers (11) said.

How

Sure going to school dances are fun, but actually attending the dance isn't the only exciting aspect. Buying your tickets, the days leading up, getting ready with your friends, and making plans for the after party can be some of the most fun parts of school dances. But have you ever stopped to think that the chaos of getting ready applies not only to you, but to the students preparing for the dances as well? Senior Class Cabinet was in charge of this year's Senior Banquet. "We've been working on planning the dance since December, and it's not hard but really stressful," Marisa Ajder (12) said. Teachers, as well as the club, help raise money for the dance by printing and selling tickets. Ryan Michaels (12) along with Russel Almazan (12) were responsible for the Club Cancun benefit. "We were trying to think of a way to raise money for Alex Rodriguez, and we wanted to think of a benefit that kids would actually go to — so we had a dance!" Michaels said.

It took the students about three hours to set up the night of the dance. "The turnout was definitely worth the hard work; we raised three thousand dollars," Michaels said. Student Council helped to sponsor the Cancun dance, as well as the homecoming dance. "Setting up for the homecoming dance was not nearly as easy as Club Cancun; it was basically a four month process," Irais Ferreira

(12) said. Student Council raised thirteen thousand dollars from the homecoming dance alone. "We also together

give some of our extra earnings to different fund raisers" Ferreira said.

Council and I have to make sure that everyone gets paid for the jobs that they do. I also make sure that all the bills and expenses are paid and that we stay on budget. If we happen to overspend our funds, we have to have fundraisers to re-raise the money. We spent $1000 over for homecoming, so we had to conserve in other places. For example, we couldn't spend as much money on our scrapbook, we couldn't buy as many items for it. I pretty much make all the decisions, such as whether or not we donate to charities, on my own. However, the other officers do have input. They are really good with helping me with the fundraisers we participate in," Krysta Gumbiner (11) said.

"I was in junior class cabinet, and we were in charge of planning Prom. We had to do just about everything from planning what balloons to use, to the tables. We also had to choose the theme and what colors we were going to use. One time the whole club got in a fight over what colors to use. Half the club wanted dark colors, and the other half wanted bright colors. Me and my friend Katlynn Dempsey (11) were on one side fighting for the dark colors. In the end, we had to compromise to two dark colors and one bright. Once, at another meeting, we had to go through a million sheets of songs. We had to pick all of the songs we wanted the DJ to play," Danielle Desmartez (11) said.

"We have a party for National French Week, Mardi Gras and Christmas," Cristin Marren (10), vice president of the French club said.

As a newly established group, the French club doesn't have many parties, but when they do, they make sure it's one of the best for its members.

Five girls show how they help their school and community

Although it can be stressful and time consuming, these five girls make the time to get everything done because their work is important. Club presidents organize prom and homecoming. They set up the food drive, the toy drive, and other charities. They set up the blood drive, car washes, bake sales, and charity walks. Why would they want to spend their time doing this extra work? Because of the sense of achievement, seeing people's reactions and the looks on their faces, and helping the community. Not only does it look good on resumes, but there is a sense of pride with doing something for someone who needs it. The presidents of these clubs have a great responsibilit and take time out of their own lives to benefit the less fortunate.

eing the only girl is never easy.

Combine that with long, difficult, practices, and it makes for some tough days but also some funny and memorable experiences.

"I'm the only girl trombone, and it's not always easy. They push me around, kind of like big brothers," Rebecca Miedema (9) said.

The trombones are not the only section made up of a male majority.

"Being the only girl that plays the tuba can be tough, but most of the time the guys are pretty supportive," Marie Bellis (10) said.

Being the oldest gives it a 'big sister' feeling.

"I'm the only girl that plays the trumpet, but I'm older, so it's like they're my little brothers," Kelly Craig (12) said. "I always have to be working hard to prove myself; I don't want to seem like the 'girlie-girl' all the time."

During band camp, 13 hour days lead to some funny oneliners these girls will never forget.

"Our best joke was 'Who's got the tape?'" Bellis said. "The tubas were always falling apart, so we had to hold them together with electrical tape. Even though we got new tubas, we still laugh about that all the time."

The trombones had some funny insiders as well that will be hard to forget.

"I'll always remember that 'Milk was a bad choice,'" Miedema said. "The trumpets drank it before practice, and they were fine, but then the trombones tried it and got sick."

- Joseph Rogan (12) aims his melophone high while playing the music he spent over 100 hours learning. The program included music from several horror movies.
- Matthew Baranowski (12) and Anthony Seckula (12) stand at attention before a football game. The marching band's program was named Phobias.

Marching Ambition

The band traveled to Indianapolis to compete in the Bands Of America Grand National Preliminaries. They were placed in Division 1, the highest ranking possible.

"It was really hard at first to stand completely still at football games. The crowd is in front of you and your friends call out your name. I always wanted to crack up," Rebecca Miedema (9) said.

Band members Joseph Sanchez (11) and Sarah Barrientez (9) prepare to change into a new formation during the program. The band performed during halftime at football games while fans watched from the stands.

Color guard's performance provides a visual element during the marching band show. "Performing at football games shows the crowd what the band is capable of," Frank Zolp (11) said.

Marching band members stand in formation while competing in the ISSMA district competition at Penn High School. The band was ranked in the top thirty bands out of the entire country.

"We are playing the fight song before the Homecoming game started. The fight song is actually the first real song I learned, but it's nothing compared to what the show is," Katlyn Smolar (9) said.

"Being a section leader is kind of cool because you get to see the band from a different perspective; you get to see it grow," Kasey Kolosh (42) said.

"[Marching band] is fun. I love the guys and the one girl in my section. It's really great to get to know the guys better," Shaun Andres (9) said.

"I'm called Danimal because last year we had two Dans in concert band, and to be able to differentiate between us. I was named Danimal," Daniel Smith (10) said.

I'm called Frenchy because the kids in band found out that I was two percent French. I'm about as French as a French fry," Nicholas DeJarlais (12) said.

For many students standing up high on a podium directing your fellow classmates is an exhilarating job. Most kids don't get the privilege of doing it, but Benedict Tumidalsky (12) did.

"Sophomore year Mr. Harmon chose one person from Wind Ensemble and Concert Band, and then the members of those two voted for whoever they wanted," Tumidalsky said.

The chances to direct one of the bands can be extremely slim.

"I finally got a chance to direct a piece, and that same year there were only two people chosen to student direct Wind

"As an experienced band member, I've eaten more than I can remember on bus trips. The one that sticks out the most in my head is the great Ponderosa story where my 'wing man' Kyle Niewiadomski proved himself. On the way back from a competition, we stopped to eat at a Ponderosa. Kyle went up to the buffet line and then came back with his pant pockets and hoody buldging. We went back to the bus Benjamin s Experience "I love jazz band because jazz is one of my favorite types of music. It is one of the few types of music where a person can actually tell a story through soloing. Many people say they like jazz because it is relaxing, but a true jazz listener doesn't relax while listening. He listens to the style, the emotion; he interacts with the music. It gets into your blood; it owns you. That's why I love jazz," Benjamin Kistner (12)

Andrew's Experience

"Extremely fortunate was I to have been given the honor of being a section leader in the band program for three years. The program throughout the school year taught me many things about my life and the interactions that take place between people in a certain society. Highly unlike the "Hollywoodized" movie Drumline, a successful drum line requres perseverance, devotion, talent, and most importantly camaraderie. An almost supernatural amount of precision is demanded by not only the band faculty but from us as well. With music moving by at an incredible rate (slightly over 30 notes per second was the fastest we played during 2006), the entire unit must act as one mind with a few extra arms. This unity and cooperative group effort leads myself and the program to excellence repeatedly. Let my countless experiences serve to educate others, so we may pay homage to all of the hardworking individuals in not only the band program, but in every misunderstood and unappreciated activity and society in life," Andrew Bohn (12) said.

When people think band, they usually don't imagine phat beats and a passionate love for music. The Jazz Ensembles and Winter Drum Line contain both.

"Music is a good way to get away from my troubles. It's good therapy," Michael Baum (11) said.

that music is an escape.

"Drumming is where I go to when I'm in any mood. If I'm happy, I'll O pick up sticks > and play. If I'm frustrated, I'll channel my anger into the drum. I'll drum until I can't drum anymore," Corey Zencka (10) said.

When it comes to conventional musical groups, both jazz band and drum line break the mold. "Jazz is different in that, as a performer, you don't always have to follow musical rules to a 'T.' There's room for experimentation and improvisation," Baum said.

Drum line and jazz band are some of the most unique groups in the music department.

"Drum line is a physical endurance while jazz band is more mental," Chad Ventimiglia (12) said.

The main difference between winter drum line and marching band drumline is the more personal feel of winter's indoor drum line.

"In winter drum line you are 50 feet from the audience, and you're looking in the judges' eyes. It's not just about playing well, but it's also about portraying how satisfied you are with your product," Zencka said.

- The battery section of the Winter Drumline do a visual at the end of the first movement. The battery is everyone who moves with drums rather than the front ensemble who plays the pit instruments.
- Joseph Sanchez (11) plays tenor saxophone in the Jazz Band's performance after the band concert. "I play clarinet in band, but I like playing tenor saxophone as a second instrument because it helps me get some variety. Jazz is fun to play, and it makes you feel good," Sanchez said.

Scholastic A-Guard has a different routine than the Open Guard and has also been in existence for a longer period of time. The two guards practice during eighth hour and after school.

Scholastic Open Guard has a higher degree of difficulty and also partakes in more competitions. Open guard is also made up of mainly girls who have been in color guard for either three or four years of high school.

Long hours of sweat dripping down your face, arms hurting, and legs exhausted — for these girls it's just another day of practice.

Along with the grueling practices, the Color Guard has to know their routines like the back of their hand. The routines consist of dancing, twirling, and throwing objects such as weapons and flags into the air.

"You just practice one routine over and over again so it kind of sticks in your head," Stephanie Peddycord (12) said.

The girls were the Midwest Circuit champions and placed fourth in the world last year, but they still don't really have the recognition they want.

"We came such a long way, and not having any recognition from our own school was upsetting," Tiffany Johnson (12) said about their accomplishment.

According to Gabriela Dimitrievski (11), the Color Guard has been in the shadow of the Centralettes and the cheerleaders, but the girls have high hopes and are ready to have the spotlight shine on them this time.

"We have been working everyday as hard as we can," Johnson said.

With hard work, time, and many practices, the Color Guard has had a very successful year. They have proven by placing fourth in the world that they, too, can be just as goal oriented as any sports team we have.

Through all the sweat, tears, hard work, and memories, I would honestly not change anything. The past three years have been nothing but a journey for all of us. Trying out I had no idea that we would ever be as talented as we are and be as close of friends as we are. With practice almost everyday of the week for about three hours, you can imagine all the stress and hard work we put into this sport. We wouldn't do it though if we didn't love it. Last year we got 4th at the Winter Guard International Championships and I think I can speak for all of us when I saw that the feeling we all felt and the tears we all shed will never be forgotten and the feeling will never be taken away from us. Color guard has truly changed my life and I am so glad to have been a part of it," Kristina Doukas (11) said.

"Color Guard...my life. Many people cannot understand how we put up with the long hours of practice. It gets hard at times, but the ending result is unforgettable. You put in all the hard work, time, and dedication to pull together as a group and give your best

The feeling you get during an amazing show is indescribable. I will never forget WGI World Championship Finals last year. The best feeling came from the impact of the audience. The numerous amounts of people in the crowd just pumps you up with their screaming and cheering. I can't wait to do it again this year," Laura Zmuda (11) said.

When the music books cannot be used to practice, when the risers are set up in the auditorium, when the choir robes are taken down from the attic, this can only mean one thing - a choir concert is about to unfold.

"The choir concerts are crazy. When the choirs are not performing, they are all in the cafeteria waiting to go on stage. Luckily,

I have parent chaperones to watch over them," Ms. Sandra Hobbs, choral director,

There are many different ways the students of the choirs get ready for a concert. Whether it's going out to eat before the concert begins or singing really loudly in their cars on the way to the concert, most people have a routine they do before the concert.

"Ms. Hobbs plays chords on the piano, and we sing up and down with the scales," Christine Roberts (11) said.

> Not only do the choirs sing at their concerts, they also went down to Lafayette for a singing competition, ISSMA (Indiana State School Music Association).

> "We did very well this year at ISSMA. All of the choir groups received a "1" in sight-reading and performances. A "1" is the highest score possible," Hobbs said.

Despite the crazy aspects of waiting to go on stage before a concert or before a competition, choir can be an exciting elective to take as an everday class.

"I have been singing in choir since I can remember. I like choir; singing makes life fun," Jenna O'Lone (12) said.

"Choir has been a lot of fun. It has been some work, but it has been really enjoyable.

My favorite song to sing was 'Journey in Peace,' and I would practice singing for it by just sitting down and doing some breathing exercises. I usually just keep my voice rested by not talking.

I joined choir because I enjoy singing; it is definitely worth it. I think that you can express yourself better through music rather than just talking or through poetry.

My biggest inspiration to sing has been my mom. She sings a lot and gets teary-eyed when she hears me sing.

Students take a crack at script writing

The freshman play, Oh My Godl, had a very unique twist this time around. Not only was the script completely original, but it was written by a group of students. Matt McClure, Andrew Resa, and David Podsiadlik took it upon themselves to write the script. They also directed the play.

"We had these ideas that were inspired from another show, so we just wrote our own," David Podsiadlik (12) said.

These three seniors who wrote and directed the play went for a purely comedic atmosphere.

"We had to edit a lot out. Some of our jokes were 'dirty' so we just changed them to child humor," Matt McClure (12) said.

The play itself was about two Romans, one an actor - the other a writer. Throughout the course of the play, these two try to find an ending for their play. The writers hoped their humor would catch the audience's attention.

"I was hoping for constant laughter," Podsiadlik (12) said. According to those who attended, the play was a success.

New Season: New Coach

Coach Melby helps encourage the players

Joseph Shaughnessy (10)

The football team has been through many changes, but the one that stands out the most was having a new coach. "It wasn't like having a new coach because Coach Melby was the assistant coach last year. I enjoyed having him as the new coach," (10) said. "Coach Melby seems to have done many good things for the football team this season. The experience with the new coach was really good, and he was trying to change the program around." Matthew Foust (12) said

Beginning the new season was tough, but they managed by having fun and just being together as a team. "The funniest moment of the season was when Coach Compton did the 'pencil sharpener' dance," Brad Trembacki (12) said. The season has been a tough one for the players this year, and it's a hard one for some of the players to look back on according to Trembacki. "My experience was a bit disappointing because the wins-losses ratio doesn't show how hard we've worked," Trembacki said.

During the practices, the whole team split into different groups, all depending on what position the players had. "I was a linebacker, so I practiced with Coach McGremis. We would go over gap and pass drop drills. The whole team did hitting drills at the beginning of practice." Shaughnessy said. There also were a few mishaps that happened throughout the season. "My most embarrasing moment was during the Chesterton game when I got panicked by a wide receiver" said.

How has football changed

"It made me better, more strong, and I am more appreciative now than when I was a freshman," Michael Venturelli (12) said.

"It has changed me because I have more respect for the coaches for putting up with us," Ryan Frost (12) said.

Bittersweet season Boys soccer team makes history

"I was so close and now it's over.

Season's over, high school's over.

This is as far as I'm going to get,"

Eric Gehrig (12) said.

The scoreboard read four to four: Lake Central and North Central were neck and neck. There were over 2,000 people crammed into the bleachers and packed against fences - all to witness the outcome of the 2005 state finals shootout. Tension and anticipation flooded the stadium.

"All those people and knowing our season was on the line made it pretty insane,"

Captain Eric Gehrig (12) said.

Leading to the state game, the boys traveled to compete against their zealous rival, Valparaiso High School, only to walk away with the pride of a victory.

"We gave each other motivation," Luis Almeida (11) said, "Because a lot of people thought we wouldn't make it. We blew everyone away."

The team achieved a great win. For the first time in school history, the boys were on their way to state.

"It was important for the program,"

Coach Jereme Rainwater said, "It was the first semi-state championship. It was important to advance to the next level."

The boys were close this season. They made it a tradition to sing their hearts out on the bus after a tough game.

"It is kind of like a family atmosphere," Joey Ciucki (11) said. All of these past experiences and friendships were > running through the players minds as they stood awaiting North Central's goal attempt: the goal that would determine their fate. Captain Eric Gehrig stood between the goal posts as North Central's kick managed to slip past his fingers and land in the net.

"I was so close and now it's over," Gehrig said, "Season's over, high school's over. This is as far as I'm going to get."

Even this loss couldn't break the team's spirit down too much. They still managed to find the strength to carry on the tradition of singing a song on the bus ride: their last song together.

- Gregory Gehrig (12) is consoled by Ninc Guzina (11), pauses as Guzina and Oliver Szymczyk (12) accept their defeat. They had to deal with losing the state game.
- James Freisinger (11) fights for the ball against a North Central player in the state game. Freisinger was a key offensive player for the boys team.

- Michael Rassel (11) is suspended in the air as he defends the goal. Rassel's strong defense paid off, and he blocked the opponent's goal attempt.
- Joey Clucki (11) prepares for a kick on the final shootout of the state game. Cluki said he was "Feeling pretty confident and trying to stay focused."

"Thanks to all my teammates for the past four years. We have become very close, and I will never forget you nor the past season," Captain Eric Gehrig (12) said.

"This season we had a lot of fun and became closer. Each player contributed physically and mentally. [It was the] best time of my life," Benjamin Elvira (12) said.

Shane's Experience

Greg Gehrig (12) and Shane Cloutier (10)

"This past season was a huge accomplishment for Lake Central's history. The varsity team was the first to make it to the final four. I had a privilege to be a part of it all and to learn and gain experience from the older guys. Practice was competitive and challenging everyday. It just shows how much hard work really does pay off. Team work also played a big roll in our success. We became great friends on and off the field," Shane Cloutier (10) said.

□Mikes Experience□

A 'Cinderella Story'

☐ Girls make it to State

"The new coach made a big difference in how we did. She was on the LC team before, so she related to us. She made us do 'power hour,' which is hard conditioning for an hour straight. We were better conditioned this year. I think we did so well because our team was so close and we worked hard for each other, not just ourselves,"Jessica Govert (12) said.

"We came together as a team really well this year, and kept pushing each other to do the best that we could." The underclassmen were upset to lose their seniors, but they look forward to the start of the next season. "As a team, we are going to miss them because they brought and very disappointed so much to the team as players and as individuals," Stephanie it that far," Alexa Lee (11) said.

"Who-haa! Our new coach came from Valpo and learned the phrase there. We said it before every game to get us pumped. Making it to state was such an improvement from last year that the newspaper even called us a 'Cinderella Story.' I was pumped about going to state, that we lost, but I was still proud we made Krygier (11) said.

Anthony Kellams (12) said.

"I was pulling the ball back trying to get around the player," Samantha Cook (9) said. Cook was the the JV team's starting forward and later moved up to varsity.

□ Rachel's Experience

"When Caitlin broke her arm, it brought down our team's confidence by a lot," said Rachel VanderGenugten (12). "We all knew it was going to be a lot harder without her. It was difficult to make such a quick change, but I think that we did very well with the time that we were given. Jessica Govert stepped up and did very well as Caitlin's replacement. Alex Graves then took Jessica's old position, as stopper, and also did a great job. We were all thankful for their hard work"

Caitlin's Experience

"I broke my arm during our final game in semi state," said Caitlin Shaughnessy (12). "I was trying to stop myself from falling, and I heard it snap." Shaughnessy's position was the sweeper, or last defender, and she was the main person for her position. "Ten minutes after I broke it, I had to go to the hospital. I came back to the game when there was only two minutes left, and I saw that we were going to win. I just started bawling because I knew we were going to state, and I wouldn't be able to play. I was mostly upset because it was my senior year, and I couldn't play at state."

Although Shaughnessy's experience was not necessarily a good one, she was still very satisfied with her season. "I just really enjoyed seeing how close we all came. We reached every goal that we had."

ou work hard for months, practicing, training, until you finally get what you want, your team won semi-state. So, what do you do? Well, if you're the boys' soccer team, you drain all of your pent up energy in a different fashion.

About half of the soccer team covered Mr. Jereme

Rainwater's house in around two hundred roles of toilet paper after they had won semi-state and before they went to state.

"We were just so excited we went to semi-state," Milan Marinkovich (11) said.

How did they get all twelve players to Mr. Rainwater's house at one time? "We spent the night at Kenny's [Noel (12)] the night we TP'd Rainwater's house." Marinkovich said.

The team used all of their creative ability to make sure the house was a picture of perfection covering as much of the house as they could.

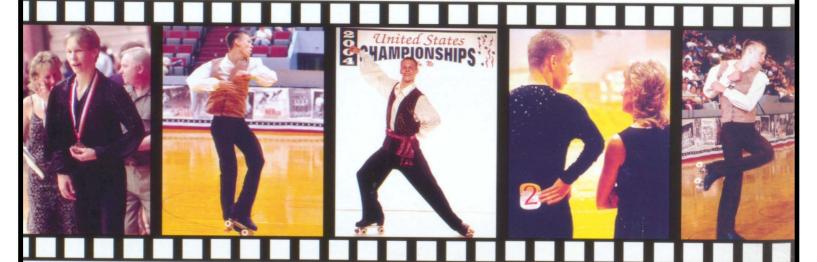

"Four of the boys were on the roof and about eight were on the ground TPing," Bradley Gerlach (12) said.

Why settle for good when it can be amazing?

"We had to go back to the house twice. The first time we TP'd the front of the house, and then we ran out of toilet paper, the second time we did the back and the sides," Marinkovich said.

An audience even showed up to take pictures and cheer the team on in their architectural venture that night.

Raising the Bar...to 16 Feet

"My experience at AAU Northern indoor national meet was a memorable one. I had prepared for the meet all winter and was ready to vault. Before the meet, I had been stuck under fifteen feet, which abeginning to bring me down and get on my nerves. That day when the bar got to fifteen feet, I was nervous and unsure of myself. I missed as 15 ft. two times, and with only one attempt left, I cleared it. Next, I decided to try 15'6", a personal best by 6 inches, which I cleared on my first try. Finally the bar was raised to sixteen feet. I missed it two times as well, and on my third attempt, I made it. I was ecstatic, and I couldn't comprehend what I had done. It turned out to be the most rewarding thing that I have ever done in track and field. And although I hope to better that performance, I am completely satisfied with that vault — especially indoors. I'll remember that morning for the rest of my life," Alexander Zona (12) said.

Many coaches support team bonding throughout the season. One way many teams get together after the required time is through pasta parties.

Something the cross country team understands is having their pasta parties two days before any meet. The meal that helps enhance athletes' performances most is actually the meal two days before their activity. Many teams have their pasta parties the day before, but that meal is not helping the athletes in any way besides the practice they have right after eating.

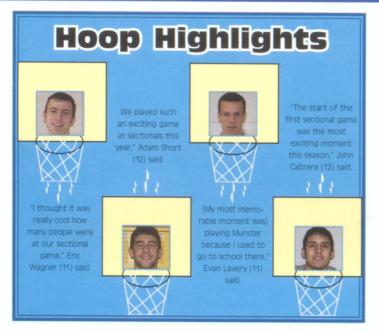

"The girl's cross country team is very close. Not only do we hang out during practices and meets, but we also get together outside of cross country. "Being able to play varsity as a sophomore was a valuable learning experience for me this year. I have to admit, the first time I stepped on the court in a varsity game, I was nervous because I didn't know what to expect, but as the season progressed, I felt more confident in myself. This is greatly due to the fact that both the coaches and the older players were very supportive of the minutes that I played," Ryan Schweitzer (10) said.

Success through teamwork

Jenelle Kapelinski (11) recalls some great memories made this basketball season, which include beating Crown Point, Merrillville, and Valpo, but the memories go back much further. "I will miss shooting drills with Lisa Kruse during practices since freshman year, and I will miss playing with Angela Fuston; we have played together since third grade," Kapelinski said.

After boosting their confidence level, the girls ended the season with satisfaction. "We're the best 1 and 5 team in the state. We even beat Merrillville. They were undefeated and huge!" Ashley Michalski (11) said. The girls accomplished more than it seems; they came together and defined team unity. "[I'll miss] spending time with the girls," Michalski said.

"I'm really going to miss going to miss basketball at LC. I played four years of varsity under Coach Megyesi and I feel like he was part of my family. The thing that will change the most next year is Coach Megyesi being retired; this will change coaching tactics. I've met some of my best friends through Lake Central basketball. It was a great time in my life. Megyesi is an awesome guy, and he is like a father to the team," Angela Funston (12) said.

"The guys' swim team is a pretty laid back organization. A lot of people participate in athletics to test the limits of the discipline, endurance, and desire to win. I swam for fun. I think the secret to whatever I may have accomplished in swimming lies in that philosophy. Sure I complained as much... oh, more than anyone else, but in the end we were all working to accomplish the goals of the team. High on that list was 'enjoy yourself'.

Coach Smolinski is one of the countless people I have to thank for our season. I can remember at sectionals he told us to keep the relaxed atmosphere we had our entire season. Coach was willing to push us and train us hard, but he also understood what drove us to compete at our highest level.

I need to thank the team. Guys, we had a great run, and we all owe it to each other.

You're all great competitors and friends, and I can't tell you how much fun it's been, or how proud I was to train with you.

All in all, LC swimming has been an excellent way to spend the last four years of my life. I've learned countless life lessons from my coaches, teammates and competitors. I owe it all to you guys. It's been great!" Nicholas Krol (12) said.

■ Nicholas Boney (10) lays on the mats during the diving portion of the meet. "We always sleep during the middle of the meet to save energy for the second half [of the meet]," Boney said.

"Our focus throughout the season was to dominate our toughest rival: Munster," cocaptain Steven Zajac (12) said.

"The funniest time during the season was when I threw Jason Specyal in the pool with all of his school clothes on," Adam Momcilovic (11) said.

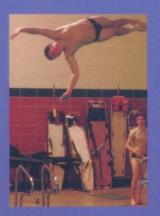

Christopher Johnson (9) races in the 100 breaststroke. He broke records throughout the season. 'I am really happy I broke our coach's 200 individual medley. It has really inspired me because he went to the Olympic trials," Johnson said.

■ William Wright (11) counts the laps of Matw Schmidt's (9) 500 freestyle at the state meet. It was held at IUPUI in Indianapolis.

Diving: Why is it for you?

"Diving is for me because it's both a mental and physical challenge," Timothy McFarland (12) said.

"I started diving my junior year and it naturally came to me. I never thought I would be as good as I am," said Drew Schmidt (10).

They have shared their greatest victories and their greatest disappointments. They laugh together; they sweat together. They even travel in packs. Who are they? They are the members of the boys' swim team.

Team unity is one of the team's greatest strengths. "When you hang out with guys at five o'clock in the morning, you have to like them, or it won't work," Jonathan Solan (10) said.

Members of the team can be found eating lunch together in the cafeteria. They spend time together not just as teammates but also as friends.

"We do a lot of Frisbee and different activities. We play video games and hang out at the mall," Matthew Schmidt (9) said.

Dumont, Schmidt, and Solan agree that the most memorable part of the season was beating rival Munster in the dual meet.

"It felt really good. We weren't sure we were going to beat them, and afterwards we celebrated at Culver's," Solan said.

The team had one of the best seasons in recent years, losing only

His hard work harvested good results. He broke the 200 Freestyle freshman record and made it to state in two individual events.

Dumont said it best, "If the end justifies the means, it's worth it."

"Swimming since freshman year has been the most challenging, exhilarating, and exhausting experience of my life. The hard work and dedication of early morning practices to an all day meet is worth all the pain and sweat. From freshman year initiation by being thrown into the pool with my clothes on, to being voted captain my senior year, swimming is something I will never forget. One of the funniest memories I had during the swimming seasons was going to all of the pasta parties," Jessica Gross (12) said.

"We were really close this year and had a lot of fun at meets. We also had a pretty good season for being a young team,"

Lauren Tharp (10) said.

"All the girls were really close this year; there was no drama. Everyone got along,"

Sara Krol (11) said.

Aquatic Athletes Focus set on the mental part of a race

As the beep sounds, all six girls dive off the blocks with one thing on their minds — touching the wall before the other team.

"Before I dive off the blocks, I mentally prepare myself by saying, 'It's only four 25's and I'll get through it.' I have to do what I know best...swim," Mandy Lippens (10) said.

In and out of the pool, this season was a success for the girls.

"We were all really close this year. We hang out together all the time," Sara Krol (11) said.

Many of the girls mentally prepare themselves for swim meets in many different ways.

"I sometimes listen to music and try not to get stressed out," Lauren Tharp (10) said.

Physical training before and during the season motivated the girls to be determined to have a successful season.

"Before the season we do a lot of dryland training. We did a lot of running and six hundred crunches everyday," Sara Krol (11) said.

The divers had to mentally and physically train themselves for their season as well.

"I think about my dives, go through them in my mind, and work on my abs, calf, and quad muscles," Paige Biegel (10) said.

Although the team was made up of many underclassmen, the girls had a tremendous season. Many friendships and memories were made that will last forever.

"Kat (Katherine Markiewicz (12)) and I always listened to (comedian) Dane Cook at meets. It was hilarious; we always ended up laughing hysterically. That was an awesome part of the season," Elizabeth Cortroubis (9) said. "I love all my girls!"

Stephanie Baer (12) said. "This has been our everything, 'our sport', and it's really sad and hard realizing that we won't be doing it past this year,"

Shannon Rose (12) said.

"My best match of the season was my first match against this kid from Highland at Rumble in the Region. Being the only guy going to Semi-State kind of sucked because I had to work really hard at practice in the post season while everyone else on the team just screwed around. I did all right at Semi-State, but I would have rather made it to state," Joseph Damron (10) said.

"My biggest rival this year and also my best match of the season was against a kid from Hobart. It was my best match mainly because we had about the same skill level, and we both beat each other a few times before that match. I didn't do as well as I thought I should have this year. I am going to try to continue wrestling in the future, but I'm still not sure yet," James Janda (12) said.

"One of the best parts of my season was during Sectionals when I got first. I faced a kid from Morton who I lost to a few times last vear so I was really excited to beat him for the Sectional title. Football and track help me keep in shape by weightlifting and running in the off season. Hopefully I'll make it to state my junior year and win state my senior year," Mark Chraca (10) said.

I thought I could've done better at state because I only placed seventh. I plan to stick with bowling through my next two years of high school," Alex Bodnar (10) said.

□ Team experience

In all teams, there are many moments that are very meaningful, and it is something that can represent the whole year. Inside jokes can last a lifetime. The girls bowling team had many inside jokes. "Woosh!" came from a girl from Portage who had a funny follow through, so the girls came up with the name. "Every time we got a strike, we would yell 'Woosh!" Megan Chambers (11) said.

Kristine's experience

'One team one goal.' That was the saying for the girls' team this year. It's something that brought the team together in their time of need. Having a lot to prove after losing half of our team to graduation last year, the Lake Central girls bowling team proved they are close to unstoppable. "Losing only one game in Conference Match play, we finished the season with a great record of Conference and sectional championships, first runner up at regionals, third at semi-state with an amazing finish of second best girls' team in Indiana. "I was proud to be the captain of this team and wish them the best of luck next year," Kristine Nelson (12) said.

"Starting out the day in sixth place was a huge disappointment, but our coach told us 'don't let them take this experience away from you,'" Nelson (12) said.

Faced with this endeavor to prove that they were good enough to be in the top four, they fought as hard as they possibly could to win.

"We started to claw our way to the top," Nelson (12) said.

Soon the team was back into familiar territory fighting for first place. When the teams got narrowed down to four, the team was ranked third. They won the next two games but had a tough loss in the finals.

Although this curse hung over the varsity squad, junior varsity had a slightly different season.

Young and Determined The winning streak continues

Starting off the Centralette season was extremely hectic.

"There was always a girl either coming or going," Monica Delatorre (11) said.

This was happening nearly every other day, so it was difficult to get a set team for the year.

"It was a hassle to keep reteaching the dance steps over and over," Delatorre said.

Even with all this drama arising, the girls pulled together to get past all the doubts everyone had.

"Everyone thought that we would never win at state; a lot of people kept saying it was going to be Munster's year," Brittany Boudiette (12) said.

Determined to prove everyone wrong, they set their minds on getting the gold.

"With everyone making we knew we would have to work extra hard," Tara Davis (10) said.

All the hard work and dedication finally paid off.

"UDA Nationals was one of the greatest experiences I've had. When we first got to Florida it was late, but we were so hyper. The first day it poured, but we still had to practice. The whole team had ponchos except me, so I wore a garbage bag. Everyone thought I looked ridiculous. That was just one of the many laughs we had. Nationals to our team is a huge deal. There were over 200 teams there, and being around so many girls competing was a lot of fun," Alyssa Goodfriend (9) said.

"UDA camp was quite the experience. When we first showed up to the rooms we were staying in, we were horrified. Besides our rooms being bad, we were pretty much exhausted the whole time there because we had to walk a mile to get to the actual camp. As the camp went on, I did as much as I could to try and keep everyone in a good mood. This is where the Napoleon Dynamite impressions came into play. Overall, it was a great learning experience. The camp helped us get tough and determined for the rest of the upcoming year," Tara Davis (9) said.

What motivates an athlete? What is it that pushes the athlete to whole that each member had. attend the everyday practices, run the everyday miles, and put forth the everyday effort needed to be part of the team? For anyone on track and field, these things are the steps toward achievement.

"The most important part of being on track is remaining dedicated. As a whole I think the team was very dedicated this year," Michael Rainbolt (11) said. Dedication is key to a successful season, and it was this dedication that pushed the athletes to practice, come rain or snow, and improve themselves each

My Experience

"This year in track was better than the last.

We had the best team ever in the 4 by 100 meter relay. It was me, Muha, Mardo, and Trembacki. It won't be as much fun without them next year. But Coach Skrupa is getting so much help so hopefully next year will be as much fun as this past," Kevin Snyder (10) said.

Steve Meeker (10) also had similar feelings towards the year.

"It's always good to be competitive, but what's more important is having fun while you're competing. Our team worked hard this season and I think it showed. I have to give credit though to all the hilarious seniors who made the entire season memorable. Never was there a dull moment,"

Although practices weren't easy, team spirit made it fun.

"Track practice was sometimes tough after school, but it was also really fun. I always liked working on hurdle drills and starts because we would get out of the running workouts. The best part of practice was definitely when me

We always worked together and encouraged one another to do our absolute best. Being their big sister really made me feel like I was helping out. I really enjoyed helping both of them out this season. We all had a lot of fun. It really was a great season," Megan Giordano (11) said.

Amanda Gnerlich (9) "runs through" the hurdles at the April 4th meet against Gary Roosevelt. Her perseverence earned her a place on the sectional roster.

Buddy Bags

What's inside?

Buddy bags are a girls' tennis team tradition that makes them unique from the rest of Lake Central's sports teams. At the beginning of the tennis season, right after cuts are made, the varsity and junior varsity teams make lists of their favorite food, candy, drinks, and anything else they come in handy when it comes time to make buddy bags. Each girl on the team chooses a name out of a bag. After the names are picked, they find the list of items that the team member has asked for and buy some of the items.

"The best things I ever got in my Secret Buddy Bag were a rainbow slinky and raisinettes from Aliki Doukas (11)," Alexa Toporis (11) said.

Many of the girls on the team received items that were personal.

"Secret buddies are alot of fun and they help us get to know each other a lot better," Emily Shaw (9)

The team members make buddy bags about three times a year for away games only. At > the end of away game. each girl on out who their Secret Buddy was. Some girls already know who was their Secret Buddy, but it's still fun to see the expressions of everyone else. Both making and recieving them can be fun for the girls. The Buddy Bags are made to be interesting and to fit the personality of both the giver and reciever.

"Buddy Bags are fun and they are unique to the girl's tennis team," Claire Trincot (11) said.

"The past three years of playing on the tennis team will be memories that I will cherish forever. The goals that I wanted to accomplish this year and the hard work put in the off season really paid off. All the girls on the team are awesome, and I will miss them so much. All the pasta parties, karaoke-ing, dance-offs, and the bus rides make me laugh every time I think of them. This year was a great end to my tennis career," Catherine Feeney (12) said.

"Our current record is 7-2 with our only losses being to Michigan City and a one point loss to Chesterton, which was very disappointing," Ronald Prestamer (10) said.

team has worked hard and shown enthusiasm and dedication to come together as a team and thrive, according to Prestamer.

"We score when we need to; we're not just a practice team. and we've come more together," Prestamer said.

With such a young team and not a single senior on the team. the boys have stepped it up and worked together.

"The lack of seniors gave a chance for the younger players to really step it up and get a shot," Hackel said about the young team.

Earlier in the season, the team had beaten and undefeated Valparaiso team and held one of the biggest golf tournaments around; the Lake Central Invitational hosted a whopping number of twenty-one teams from around the area.

Valparaiso pretty good feeling and our Lake Central Invite was really fun," Gregory Krumm (11) said.

With a steady season and a promising team, the boys are on their way to finish up the year and hopefully come out on top with a season to remember.

"We've improved from last year and since we will have the entire team returning next year; we will become better," Krumm said.

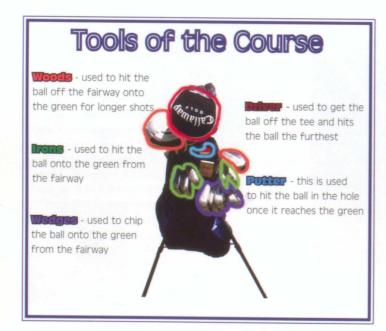

Kyle Hackel (10) tees off at the Lake Central Invitational. The invitational featured many different teams from the area leaving the boys with stiff competition.

■ While another player putts, Ryan uldt (10) lines up his shot. Players want to make sure they have a good angle when they make their putt to lower their strokes.

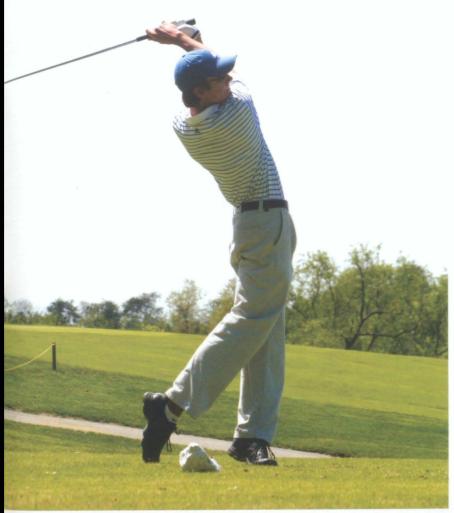

- Stevan Ivetich (10) moves the flag so a player can make his shot. The reason players move the flag is to alleviate any problems with the ball hitting the pole.
- During practice, the boys have groups they stay in to enhance their performance. Keeping their mental games up to par, the boys shoot with those ranked closely to them.

■ Garret Koch (9) picks out one of his seven iron's to use for his upcoming shot. This was Koch's first year to play golf for the school's boys team.

Mr. Zowers Experience

"Coaching the golf team is by far one of the hidden gems in the coaching world. You are outside - in the cold and sun - and playing a sport that is totally individual. That is the greatest part of the sport; every player's score is totally dependent upon themselves and not someone or something else. That is a major part of how you approach coaching this sport - getting each player to buy into the integrity and respect the sport represents and understanding the rules of the game. Coaching and playing golf takes patience and persistence - it is a game that often humbles the player and is one that you never totally beat. There is never a day in the season to waste because the game requires so much of your attention and focus on the areas that need improvement," Mr. Tim Powers said.

Stevans __ Experience

"I have been playing golf since I was about eight years old. My dad introduced the game to me and I have loved the sport ever since. We have gone to see many tournaments, and to play many different courses in and out of state. I have played golf in Florida, Wisconsin, Texas and Canada to name a few. I have played in church related tournaments and some charity events. Last year, as a freshman, I played on J.V. and worked really hard on my game to make varsity this year. My best round of golf this year has been recorded as a seventy-eight. I have played number one varsity, and this has been an honor and a challenge. I hope to continue to improve my game and support my team," Stevan Ivetich (10) said.

"Adam was a great kid and was really funny. He had an ability to make everyone laugh. As far as I could tell.

Adam was well liked by everyone I knew Adam since elementary school and was good friends with him. Adam will be missed by all who knew him," Brian Cooper (10)

"Adam DiQuattro passed away July 16, 2005 at the University of Chicago Hospital. He had many friends at Lake Central. Adam had a wonderful sense of humor that we all greatly miss. His spirit lives in our hearts forever. It was truly a privilege to be Adam's mom." Julie DiQuattro

"Adam Diquattro was a good friend; he will be missed by evervone. Adam had many many friends and was a good-hearted person. Adam was always happy about life and could make anybody laugh. Adam was a good person. He did not deserve this. He will be greatly missed by all of his friend," Joesph Ciserella (10) said

"In Mrs. Mamon's class Adam did a speech on Romeo and Juliet, and all he had was a picture of a turkey. I will always remember that," Thedore Hiemstra (10) said.

"It is safe to say that he is loved and missed by many. Nick never let anything bother him or bring down his spirits," William McCallister (11) said.

Michalas Mittler

September 12, 1988 - August 22, 2005

Michelas Nathan Mittler was born on September 12th, 1988. Nicholas brought me great joy, hope, and love. We all miss him so very much since he passed away Aug. 22, 2005. We keep his smiling face, his warm hugs and his laughing, joking personality in our hearts. He played the piano and the trumpet. He was gifted with good looks, intelligence, and a caring heart. He loved his family and friends. We have wonderful memories of good times spent together. He spoke to me of the fun he had hiking, biking, canoeing, the Dunes playgrounds and state park overnights, wonderful memories of boating, tubing, Halo II parties, our backyard fun with our pool and trampoline. Nicholas asked Jesus into his heart and believed in God, but he did not understand why bad things happened. I feel Nicholas is now surrounded by God's great peace, love and understanding in Heaven. Someday when we die (if we believe in God's promises), we will meet Nicholas again! Nicholas would want us to be strong and think of the good times with a smile. I thank God I was blessed with Nicholas as my son.

Love always, your mom (Jeanne L. Mittler)

"My brother Nick, you were my world that made me live. And now, I am dying inside without you until we meet again. R.I.P. Love your lil sister," Leah Mittler (9)

"The many wonderful and joyous memories I have with you will always live on, strong & forever. Nick thanks for being such a great brother to have; you will be in my heart and missed forever," Joshua Mittler (12) said.

"I miss you little buddy, and I'll be thinking of you. Peace. Love, your big sister Michelle,"

Michelle Mittler ('01) said.

Kelly Knauss

You're beautiful, you're bright, and you're confident. You always make us proud.

Dad and Mom

Natalie Raketich

Natalie,

The day God brought you into our lives was just the beginning of the wonderful years we have had watching you grow into the confident, caring, beautiful person you are, inside and out. Your smile not only lights up a room, but our lives. There has never been a day in your life that you haven't made us proud to be your parents, and we know there never will be. So here are the inspirational quotes, from your mother and Dale Carnegie: "Success is getting what you want. Happiness is wanting what you get.", and from your father and Michael Jordan: "Just play. Have fun. Enjoy the game."

We love you sweet pea, Mom and Dad

My Colo

It's nearly 2 a.m. and the lights in S103 are still on. There are McDonald's remnants everywhere, and the heat that's being thrown from the computers is what is keeping the room warm. But wait, the room is not empty yet-oh no! It's still bustling with us editors trying to keep our eyes wide open so we can finalize spreads for mailing. Then, like a scene out of The Breakfast Club, we're doing suicides in the halls to keep ourselves awake. This was the night the word 'bust' became the new in thing to say, it was the night Verpooten gave voices to holes of white space.

Flash back to the end of the summer. Myself and the rest of the editorial board united together to attend Ball State to come up with a kick-butt theme. Just when we thought we had one, I went to the bathroom to come back and find it was scratched! That was all part of the process. Then - our first technological malfunction of the year - our rental car's dashboard indicators went out on our way home.

We came back this year with a concept - we knew we wanted to talk about high school students experiences. After more brainstorming we finally had it - high school: my experience! We finally had a theme! We made it our plan to work hard and get every person that attended LC in the book that wanted to do so. We also stretched our page number to 336 and decided that our book would go divider-less.

What I never knew were all the experiences that I and the staff would have in the process. We've had our fair share of technical difficulties, and they all seemed to hit at once! A baby ad spread went missing, all of the cameras caught a virus at the same time (since when do cameras get viruses?).

This book would not mean anything, and I mean anything, if it weren't for the amazing staff that I was blessed with. We even have our own magician known as the Great Landini. We have staff members that excel in every aspect of what it is to be a yearbook member. We have staffers who take amazing photos and write terrific copy, and also create the best indexes the world has ever seen. Each day brought a new laugh, some days more than others. I will miss Rachel Ryan's laughter, Stephanie Mirrabelli's music, and Mike Landini's magic tricks. You have all become part of my high school experience.

To you editors out there, you have all put your heart and soul into this book, and trust me it shows! Natasha has been our Club Quiver DJ and has introduced us to the Jewish Rabbi Reggae Rapper. She brought a funky fresh style all her own to this staff. Natalie was our resident Martha Stewart, but was also a steady rock for everyone to cling to. Her patience has been a God-send. Kat is our resident story girl, and I don't mean this because she is the copy editor, I mean it because everything is literally a story to her. Every conversation starts with "Oh my God you won't believe what happened!" This is a good thing, we never miss out on anything. Erin is as chipper and smiley today as the day I met her. Nothing EVER gets her down, and I truly admire that quality in her. Andrea is my ghetto girl who can shake it like nobody's business and still hand out cameras with ease and grace! These girls stayed till two in the morning working on this yearbook. If that is not passion and dedication, I don't know what is.

I feel like I really started my high school career in Verpooten's room. I have literally grown up in S103, and have always known that when in need she would NEVER let me down. After Spring Break this year I felt like I had hit a brick wall, a journalism wall that is. I was at a point where I thought I couldn't get any lower when she wrote me something that changed my viewpoint on things...and I quote "You have worked too hard and come to far to stop short. This year is your year. Try to enjoy it before it's over." These words snapped me out of my slump and made me realize that this year is almost done. No matter how much I don't want any of this to end, I see now how much this publication has done for my life and for me as a person. I'm going to walk out of $103 my last day and know that my life was changed forever by Verpooten and everyone else (that means you too Wady) that ever spent their time growing in there too.

I don't think that any of us knew that by making this book we would be chronicling OUR high school experience. Every single page has a story behind it, one that the rest of the school won't know, but we as staff members will. So here it is the end of my time here, I never thought that this day would come, and all I can say is that my high school experience has been Quiver and all of the NON STOP moments.

Quiver Volume 40 high school: My experience was printed by Herff Jones, 2525 Midpoint Drive Edwardsville, KS 66111 with the assistance of Lisa Merino, our Customer Service Adviser and Debbie King, our Technical Support Adviser. The book had a press run of 1,650, featured on 100 lb. Bordeau paper. Early yearbook orders during registration cost $45, while end of the year orders reached $65. All page layouts were created using Adobe InDesign CS and Adobe Photoshop 7.0. Our staff photographers shot thousands of digital images using Canon Digital Rebel cameras. Giola's Photography in Merrillville. IN, shot all underclass, senior and group pictures. Titak Photography in Schererville provided all sports group photos. Copy was in 10-point Antique Olive Light, captions were in 8-point Antique Olive Light, headlines were in Antique Olive Compact, and "My" was in Vladimir Script. The 2005 Quiver was a Hoosier Star Finalist, rated superior in the overall category at Ball State, and received 1st place with one mark of distinction from the NSPA.

At 2:09 p.m. on June 6, 2006, it was all over. The school year ended, and summer began. So much happened in those last 183 days, and it's all recorded right here. The basics were recorded for you, and you've filled in those little moments that make it your own. We had a concert from our hometown Nashville Star, Nicole Jamrose, we have ten teachers retiring before next year, and there has even been talk about a new add-on gym. You wrote down your favorite parts, and your hopes and dreams for what's to come. What will the future hold? Where will you go next? The possibilities are endless.
